ECE Releases Education System Charts and Keys

New Resource Targets the Educational Credential Evaluator Community

Milwaukee, Wis. – June 17, 2021 – Educational Credential Evaluators, Inc. (ECE®), a nonprofit organization that evaluates foreign educational credentials, released a new feature as part of the ECE® Connection Advantage called ECE® Education System Charts and Keys.

Education System Charts are free to download for everyone. The charts are a one-page diagram of the main system of education within a country and include information like credential name, type or level of education, program duration, and typical progression through the system.

ECE® Connection Advantage subscribers will also be able to access the Education System Keys. Keys supplement the Charts and include credential details, such as admission requirements, program duration, level of education, awarding bodies, and progression opportunities.

“ECE® research evaluators have been working hard to create this new resource.” said Leigh Lane Peine, ECE® Senior Director of Marketing. “These Education System Charts and Keys will help credential evaluators determine education levels, admission requirements, awarding bodies, and more. We’re happy to provide this much needed resource to our colleagues in international higher education.”

The first ECE® Education System Charts and Keys available are Brazil, Ireland, and Japan. Further Charts and Keys will be released monthly.
